Description
Provide a short description of the event and its activities.
This event presented the results of the first public consultations conducted in Poland within the RevivEU project, on the topic of migration and climate. The consultations were carried out in the form of in-person individual interviews with citizens in Poland (and the remaining three project countries as well), and with additional online participants. In order to gather the feedback from the citizens, we prepared a set of questions on the topics of EU, climate and migration, which the participants on both the in-person and online interviews answered. During the in-person interviews there was additional time dedicated to the feedback and questions of the citizens – which varied from input to the topics, the format to the questions on the project and its goals as a whole.

The presentation of the results was an open event organized in a popular social hub space in the city center of Warsaw. 16 people participated in the event (plus 3 organizers from Projekt: Polska). Participants represented Warsaw-based think tanks, political foundations, universities, and media outlets.

The event was composed of a presentation and a discussion. The former started with the introduction to the RevivEU project itself and the presentation of a selection of data from the first public consultation, in particular data on the attitude of Polish people regarding the European Union, climate policies, and refugee policies. The data was presented by Milosz Hodun, president of Projekt: Polska and one of the coordinators of the RevivEU project.

After the presentation, a Q&A session started, and it quickly evolved into a vivid debate involving all participants. The data presented was evaluated by the participants as unique and useful. According to the majority of participants, the most interesting data was about the new attitudes of Polish people regarding migration, in the context of migration from Ukraine after February 24, 2022, and raising support for the far-right party, in the context of the 2023 general elections.
